

SECTION OF ROUTE 173 TO BE INCLUDED IN MAY CONTRACTS

Right of Way Clear from Richmond to Smart Farm For Construction

Early construction work on the Antioch-Richmond section of state highway No. 173 was seen today with the announcement of the state highway department that the section of road was to be included in the contracts to be let by the state next month.

With the exception of two pieces of property, the Smart farm and property of D. F. Naber, the right-of-way tangle has been cleared to the county west line, according to County Highway Engineer Lobdel and Supervisor William Roseng. This means that the contract can be let from Richmond to Route 69 and in the event the complete right-of-way is not secured at the time of construction, the state may stop work at the west side of the Smart farm and deduct from the contract price.

All state contracts are let in this manner, Mr. Lobdel explained. The bids are for cubic yards of excavation, grading, quantity of paving material, pounds of steel, etc., with the state reserving the right to deduct up to 25 per cent of the total material figured and make a corresponding deduction from the contract price.

Location for the route in McHenry county where the road is to follow the present right-of-way was settled satisfactorily some months ago.

Ten Teams Have Entered Junior B. B. Tournament

Enthusiastic response from the Junior basketball ball teams of the surrounding territory greeted the American Legion's announcement of a tournament to be held for boys under 18 years of age at the high school next week. The dates have been changed from April 6, 7 and 8 to Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, April 7, 8 and 9.

Ten teams have already entered, and it is expected that at least two more, the Richmond and Fox Lake schools, will send in their applications. The teams already entered are: Grade school teams—Grayslake, Lake Villa, Allendale, Wilmet and Antioch (Midgate); Boy Scout teams—Salem, Antioch, Gurnee, Lake Villa and Waukegan.

The American Legion is sponsoring this tournament, not in the expectation of making money, but to encourage sports of co-operative nature among the younger boys. The silver trophy to be awarded the winner has been purchased.

G. G. Reed, sports manager of the Legion, is looking forward to three big nights for the boys, their parents, and the spectators.

Football Tactics Again Win Bout For Jim McMillin

The wrestling star of Grayslake, Jim McMillin, handed two defeats to George Zaharias, 235-pound Greek-American, at the Coliseum Monday night.

McMillin, once more employing the flying tackle which made him a football star at the University of Illinois, won the first bout in 51:38, with three tangles and a reverse body slam to his credit. His opponent, however, was almost successful with headlocks and tangles in making Jim groggy.

Four flying tackles quickly ended the second bout in McMillin's favor in 17:53.

Those with a liking for real action were satisfied, for the encounters were among the roughest staged in Chicago this season. Antioch was represented among the crowd by a number of fans.

Residents in the lake region are interested in seeing the bill become law, and this time the measure seems reasonably sure of success, as it passed the house yesterday by a vote of 97 to 1.

H. S. BOY'S ESSAY ON SOIL TREATMENT MERITS 12TH PRIZE

William Nielson Is Among Winners in Drovers Journal Contest

This is the second article written by an Antioch boy to be reprinted from the Chicago Daily Drovers' Journal, which sponsored an essay contest for boys in vocational agricultural work in Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa. William Nielson's essay on soil treatment was awarded twelfth prize.

Good Soil Benefits Legumes

After experimenting for one year with rock phosphate on oats seeded to red clover and timothy, I desired to continue for another year in order to note further effects. My plan was to compare two acres that had received an application of one ton of rock phosphate with four acres of adjoining untreated land.

My former project started in March, 1929, when the ton of phosphate was broadcast evenly over two acres of the six acres of plowed land. In April the land was double disced two times and harrowed once. The oats were drilled in and the red clover and timothy broadcast soon after.

Ripens Earlier.

In watching my oats ripen, I noticed that the phosphated ones ripened first. I received forty-four bushels per acre on the fertilized ground and forty-two on the other, but the former was of much better quality, weighing 38 pounds per bushel. The seedling made a steady growth until frost, the two phosphated acres being far in the lead.

During the months of February, March and April, 1930, I top dressed the whole field evenly with barnyard manure, leaving a small strip for experimental plots. This strip was laid out into five plots. The following table gives the plots, their treatment, and yields, as checked by my instructor:

Plot	Treatment	Yield per acre
1. None		1.4 tons
2. Ammonium sulphate		1.5 tons
3. Ammonium sulphate and barnyard manure		1.8 tons
4. Rock phosphate and barnyard manure		2.4 tons
5. Rock phosphate, ammonium sulphate and barnyard manure		2.8 tons

In harvesting my red clover and timothy hay on July 10, we could easily see where the phosphated field left off. The phosphated and manured two acres yielded 2.4 tons per acre, while the manured field yielded about 1.7 tons per acre. There was a good sized load of hay more per acre on the phosphated field.

More Seed, Also.

Instead of cutting the second crop for hay, I decided to leave it for seed. It was free from weeds and made fine seed for sowing purposes. On October 29 we hulled the crop and found that the phosphated clover yielded sixty per acre and the non-phosphated crop only forty-three pounds per acre. The former was of better quality, having more plump kernels. When this seed was shown at the Antioch fair it won second premium.

The results are so outstanding that there is no question as to the value of rock phosphate on legume crops such as clovers and alfalfa. In my case the increase in more hay and clover seed amounted to $10.55 per acre. The phosphate cost only about $9 per acre. The effect on the oats the first year was not marked but this year the results were wonderful, and there is still enough phosphate left for at least another four years.

Shows Figures.

A financial summary of my six acres follows:

Amount sold and used (hay and seed).....	$435.90
Labor.....	$ 29.77
30 tons manure.....	67.50
Hulling seed.....	13.50
Rent of land.....	36.00
Other costs.....	.75
Decrease in inventory.....	160.75
Total.....	$307.27

Total profit..... $118.55

The residual effect of the phosphate is figured in the inventory and we estimated that three-fifths of the original value is still in the soil.

According to my records and the records of the university experimental field in our neighborhood, the need for phosphate is apparent in our community, and not only are we convinced, but many of our neighbors are, and it should be easier to lay plans for a general soil building program.

Mrs. A. E. Schaefer, of Waukegan, Wis., spent the week-end on the farm of Mrs. Lou Van Patten. She returned to her home Monday.

SECONDARY ROADS NEEDED

There are three million miles of roads in the United States. One hundred and twenty thousand miles are high-type main highways, 600,000 miles are stone, gravel or sand-clay. Fifty thousand miles more have been graded. And the balance is unimproved.

To produce this result more than $12,000,000,000 has been spent. Yet there are millions of Americans, principally on farms, whose business and social contacts are out of adjustment because of poor roads, impassable during several months of each year.

Only by the wisest, most cautious use of road funds can necessary secondary roads now be built without plunging communities into debt. We take a justifiable pride in the magnificent, heavy traffic, trunk highways that go here and there throughout the nation—each mile of them represents necessary expenditure of tens of thousands of dollars. In contrast to this, full-width roads, passable at all times of the year, and adequate for tributary traffic, can be built of local materials, biruminously treated, at a fraction of the cost.

The secondary, farm-to-market road might be called the backbone of our highway system. A million dollar highway is of small use to a farmer who lives five miles away on a dirt road or to a merchant in a village which tourists avoid because of the bane of dangerous, semi-passable roads. America's highway evolution will not be complete until our primary highway system is augmented by nation-wide feeder arteries of inexpensive, but weatherproof, local roads.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF

Writing of the colonization of Virginia in 1613, John Marshall said: "Heretofore no separate property had been acquired, and no individual had labored for himself. The lands had been held, cleared and cultivated in common, and their produce carried into a common granary. Industry, deprived of its due reward, felt no sufficient stimulus to exertion, and the public supplies were generally inadequate to the public necessities. To remove this cause of perpetual scarcity, Sir Thomas Dale divided a considerable portion of land into lots of three acres, and granted one of them in full property to each individual. Industry, impelled by the certainty of recompense, advanced with rapid strides; and the inhabitants were no longer in fear of wanting bread, either for themselves, or for the emigrants from England."

Now a press dispatch from Russia, where the common ownership system has been in effect, says: "A new proposal to emphasize the dictum of 'only those who work may eat' was presented today to the all-union congress. Under the new scheme the commissariat of agriculture said the most difficult question—equalization of labor—was expected to be answered by introduction of the 'piece work' system in more than 85,000 collectives. The standard of wages will be fixed in either money or commodities so the man who works hard will receive more than the man who does not."

The moral is that economic laws are fixed and unchangeable. Even the country which is carrying on the greatest socialistic experiment in history cannot do away with the urge, which has been a part of human nature since the dawn of civilization, to reap the reward of one's own industry and ability.

"Join Red Cross," Urges Vice President Curtis

America's prominent citizens join in urging all men and women to become members of the Red Cross during the period of the annual roll call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.

The Honorable Charles Curtis, Vice President of the United States, says: "The American Red Cross is in a position to and does more to relieve those stricken by misfortune than any other organization in the world. Its splendid work has done much to bring a friendly feeling in all parts of the world for the people of our country because they sustain the American Red Cross. This wonderful organization is entitled to the liberal support of our people."

The Honorable Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, says: "No one can predict when or where disaster may occur or acute emergency arise. The American Red Cross represents our community insurance against such misfortune. The organization stands ready at all times to render speedy relief to any stricken area in the relief of disaster in foreign countries. The Red Cross is the agency which carries on when emergency has disrupted customary modes and means of life in a community."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

MRS. RICHEY AND HOME ECONOMICS DEPT. RATED HIGH

Lake Villa Badgers Win Two Close Games from Millburn Tornadoes

Mrs. Ruby Richey, instructor of home economics, and manager of the cafeteria at the high school, was highly complimented by Adah Hess, state director of home economics, in her report of her inspection of this department last week.

Miss Hess rated the department on the fine working quarters, the evidence of care taken in keeping the equipment in first-rate order, and the unusually fine teacher.

"Mrs. Richey not only teaches home economics, but lives them," she reported. "She is thoroughly familiar with the problems of the girls in her department and is an inspiration to them. Antioch is fortunate to have such a person in that position."

The school was ranked in the upper quartile of the 150 schools operating under the Smith-Hughes law.

Mrs. Richey, who was selected to take charge of the cafeteria system at the Normal State Teachers' college last summer, has the responsibility of planning the program for the next annual meeting of the state home economics association, and will carry on the work during the year.

With the close of the official basketball season, community teams have been organized among a group of the high school boys and others. The Lake Villa Badgers in two very interesting games, one at Allendale March 26, and the other at the high school March 30, defeated the Millburn Tornadoes. The games, however, were very evenly played.

The line-ups were as follows:
Lake Villa—L. Armstrong, center; H. Steffenburg, forward; T. Fuchs, forward; A. Jenerich, guard; C. Florio, guard; R. Nickerson, guard; F. Turk, guard.
Millburn—J. Neuhous, forward; R. Hughes, forward; K. Denman, center and back forward; W. Edwards, guard; V. Webb, guard; B. Bowman, guard.

Fanny Westlake, a senior at the Antioch high school, and a member of the commercial club, writes: "Do we save money? I'll say we do. Every Wednesday the students of the Antioch township high school have an opportunity to bank anything from a nickel up. This is the first year that banking has been practiced in the high school and the Commercial club is credited with starting one of the outstanding projects of the year. The advantage of a banking system is that students can deposit small amounts that they would hesitate to take to a bank weekly."

The Oakland school seventh and eighth grade students received exceptionally high grades in their final civics examination. They were as follows: Grace Minto, 95 per cent; Helen Herman, 97; Margaret Hughes, 97; Homer White, 95; Joe Sheehan, 91; Margaret Pierstorf, 91; George Anderson, 91; Harry Hallway, 90; Mildred Cermak, 90; and Alice Golden, 93. The class average was 92 per cent. There will be no school Good Friday, but school will be resumed Monday.

Miss Waterman and Miss Gallagher visited the school April 1.

The following pupils each received two pins—one for being physically perfect and one for having perfect teeth: Helen Herman, Robert White, Homer White, James Waters and Harry Hallway.

The following received pins for perfect teeth: Margaret Hughes, Margaret Pierstorf, Robert Hallway, George Anderson, Alfred Andersen, Sidney Hughes and Alice Golden.

Grace Minto received a pin for being physically perfect.

The Antioch grade school will have no school Friday or Monday.

The fifth grade students who were awarded pencils and erasers for receiving the highest grades in nature study last week were Mary Lou Sibbey, George Merrill, Alfred Davis, Gail Pierce, and Henry Patterson.

The fifth grade pupils are planting "garden" this week, each child planting the seed of a vegetable or flower in an eggshell.

The children of the second grade of the Antioch school are practicing songs, dances, and dramatizations, for the next program to be given before the Parent-Teacher Association.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Reality" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 29.

"The Golden Text" was, "As the earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth; so the Lord God will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations" (Isaiah 61:11).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit; for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God" (1 Cor. 2:9, 10).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook: "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Material sense does not unfold the facts of existence; but spiritual sense lifts human consciousness into eternal truth" (p. 103).

BUS COMPETITION HITS RAILROADS

Bankers Association President
Asks If Unfair Aid Is Given
Motorized Transport—
For Rail Mergers.

NEW YORK.—Fair treatment for the railroads in respect to highway motor competition was called for by Rome C. Stephenson, President, American Bankers Association, in a recent address here. He also strongly endorsed "sound economic railway consolidation" and praised President Hoover for his initiative in this respect.

"I am very strongly of the opinion that one of the measures which would help materially to put back business where it ought to be is the Eastern four-system plan of railroad consolidation as announced recently following negotiations instituted by President Hoover," said Mr. Stephenson. "The adoption by the Interstate Commerce Commission would tend to stabilize the transportation industry, facilitate operation and exert a favorable influence on business in general."

"It is a fact well known to business leaders that our railroads are now facing a crisis. Not only do they need protective laws to meet competitive situations arising from increased use of our highways and waterways by other carriers, but they need unification such as the proposed four-system plan provides. Our President has acted wisely in assuming a leadership in this respect and his move deserves the support of every clear-thinking citizen."

Mr. Stephenson declared that the railroads have served the country "so superlatively well that we are prone in our public affairs to overlook our dependence upon them and our obligations to them. The past, present and future progress of the United States is inseparably bound up with their welfare. In neglecting just consideration for them we are even more neglectful of the public's best economic interests."

A Question of Public Interest

"We are confronted with the question as to how much more the public economic interest will stand an invasion of the welfare of the railroads by forces and difficulties not of their own creating and not within the scope of their own unaided powers to combat," said Mr. Stephenson. "I refer especially to new competitors that are undermining the hard-earned position of the railroads, not only with the aid of natural economic forces but also through the aid of government policies which, positively or negatively, tend to give these competitors undue advantages over the railroads."

"It goes without saying that the railroads have no right, nor claim any, so far as I have been able to discern, to complain at legitimate competition in the field of transportation, for the public is entitled to the best possible transportation at the lowest practical cost. But equally does it go without saying that this cannot be fairly brought about by using, or by failing to use, the taxing powers of government to enable competitive methods of transportation to do things they could not otherwise do as unaided private enterprises, particularly when such action impairs the invested rights held in good faith by great masses of our people in established enterprises that are serving the public well."

Mr. Stephenson said it was not his purpose to argue against such competitive transportation as the highway passenger motorbus and motor truck as such, when conducted under proper conditions and in keeping with public welfare and benefit. He declared, however, there is need for serious consideration whether such competition is being developed under conditions that are unfair to the railroads, because either the outright or oblique aid of government policy is the deciding economic factor in that competition.

Would Investigate Bus Traffic

Railroad rights of way, he declared, represent tremendous capital investments, on which the railroads have also heavy current costs to meet. "They pay every day a million dollars in taxes and most of this is on their rights of way," he said. "Also they spend daily over two million dollars additional for the proper maintenance of way." He asserted that the motorbuses have not had to pay for their rights of way in any sense that the railroads paid for theirs.

"They have simply taken possession of public highways built by public funds, both state and national," he continued, "and they have extensively made those highways vastly less comfortable, less safe and less serviceable for private motorists and others who are contributing chiefly to their creation and maintenance."

Mr. Stephenson declared that all these matters should be thoroughly inquired into by competent public bodies, both state and national, with a view of determining the equities and basic public economic interests involved, "particularly in respect to their effects upon the nation's railroads."

"I venture to say," he added, "that such inquiries would show whether it is to the public interest to let things remain as they are, whether the situation calls for a new basis of motorbus and truck taxes to satisfy the equities of the case or whether it would call for such drastic action as the reclamation of this traffic from our public general highways, and the requirement that, even as the railroads, it provide as a part of its own private capital investment its own rights of way and for its own maintenance of way out of operating income."

AMUSEMENTS

KENOSHA THEATRE

Joe E. Brown and Winne Lightner, featured players in "Sit Tight," a Warner Bros. and Vitaphone production, at the Kenosha Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, with added stage attraction, Big Chinese Kiddle Revue.

TOMBOY OF TALKIES COMES TO TOWN IN "SIT TIGHT"

Winne Lightner, who is co-starred with Joe E. Brown in "Sit Tight," the Warner Bros. comedy showing at the Kenosha Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, was born in Greenport, L. I. She was brought up in Buffalo by an uncle, and early evinced a determination to go on the stage as a singer. Her first intention was to be a tragic figure in songs and acting, but the audience's ridicule when she appeared after running through a thunderstorm to make her first professional appearance at her neighborhood theatre in Buffalo, made her decide to clown her songs, which she did with the success which all the world now knows.

Some months later she was seen on a Palace bill in New York and was later featured in George White's "Scandals" and in "Gay Paree." After a successful European tour which included engagements in London and Paris, Miss Lightner returned to the United States, came to the attention of a Warner Bros. executive, and was featured in "Gold Diggers of Broadway," in which she made a phenomenal success.

She appeared as one of the seventy-seven stars in Warner Bros.' "Show of Shows," in "She Couldn't Say No," "Hold Everything," "The Life of the Party," and "Sit Tight," in which she does the most uproarious slapstick of her career.

TIFFANY KICKED BY HORSE; IS NOT ABLE TO WRESTLE

Tiffany followers were disappointed in his forced cancellation of a wrestling bout at the Palace Friday night, and a special engagement in Waukegan Saturday evening. He had been kicked in the leg by a horse a few days previous to the fight, and although not seriously injured, is out of the wrestling business for the present.

How to play Bridge AUCTION or CONTRACT

by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright, 1930, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 11

"Don't Judge by Results" and criticize a player unjustly," is a mighty good rule and one that should be universally followed. Here is the opinion of a very good player on that point: "A post-mortem at the end of a hand, if not unduly prolonged is usually a good thing. The player who listens to and learns from what is said thereby has the opportunity of improving his or her game, and should take it, even though bearing the brunt of deserved criticism. But a critic in or outside the table is guilty of unfairness if his judgment is based solely upon the result. The successful player depends on the long run upon bidding and playing the hand according to average chances. He may on occasion sense a freak distribution, or, with knowledge of his partner, good him to a bid, but assuming that all the players are equally good, there is no justice in criticizing the Dealer who, having played the hand according to the lay of the hands which might ordinarily be expected, finds that he has been defeated by a freak distribution which Mr. Know-all, looking on, had the opportunity of seeing, even before the bidding was concluded."

If spades are trumps and Z is in the lead, how can Y Z win six of the seven tricks against any defense?

Solution: The only way Y Z can so play their hands to win six of the seven tricks is to shorten Y's trump holding so that at the last three tricks, B will be able to win only one trump trick. At trick one Z should lead the king of diamonds and trump in Y's hand with the four of spades. Y should now lead the four of hearts, winning the trick in Z's hand with the queen. Z should then lead the queen of diamonds and trump in Y's hand with the four of spades. Y should now lead the seven of hearts and B can either trump or discard a club. (a) Suppose B trumps. If he trumps with the ten or eight of trumps, Z should overtrump and lead his remaining trump, which must force B's king and Y must win the balance of the tricks. If B trumps with the king of trumps, he cannot win another trick. In either case, therefore, Y Z must win all but one trick. (b) Suppose B discards a club. Z should discard a diamond. Y should then lead a low trump. No matter how B plays the hand from then on, he cannot win more than one trump trick. Any other plan of play than just outlined has a defense so if you have tried the others, try to find the defense.

Hearts are trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Y Z win six of the seven tricks against any defense?

Solution: Y Z must so play this hand that Y can trump three spades and then set up a diamond trick in Z's hand. A B's best defense is to try to block Y Z's efforts to set up a diamond trick in Z's hand.

At trick one Z should lead the jack of spades and trump in Y's hand with the nine of hearts. Y should now play the jack of diamonds and B should refuse to play his ace. If he does, a diamond trick is at once set up in Z's hand. Note that Y must play the jack of diamonds at trick No. 2 so that Z can obtain the lead twice. On the lead of the jack of diamonds, Z should play the queen, thus obtaining the lead. Z should now play the ten of spades and trump in Y's hand with the ten of hearts. Y should now lead the eight of diamonds and B should still refuse to play the ace. Z should play the nine of diamonds, thus again obtaining the lead. Z should then lead the nine of spades and trump in Y's hand with the jack of hearts. Y should then lead the seven of diamonds and B should win. As he only has a low diamond to lead, Z must win the last and sixth diamond trick with the six of diamonds. The foregoing is the only correct solution so if you have tried any other, figure out the proper defense.

If clubs are trumps and Z is in the lead, how can Y Z win five of the six tricks against any defense?

Solution: The proper way for Y Z to play this hand is to force B in the lead to his disadvantage. At trick one, Z should lead the deuce of diamonds and B can either trump or discard. The discard is of no value so his best play is to trump. B can now lead either a trump or the king of spades. If he leads a trump, the balance of Y Z's cards are good; so his best defense is the lead of the king of spades. Z should trump this card with the five of clubs. Z should now lead the seven of diamonds and trump in Y's hand with the king of clubs. B should discard a spade. Y should now lead the ten of spades and discard the ten of hearts in Z's hand. Y should then lead the jack of hearts and B can either trump or discard. If he trumps, Z overtrumps and his nine of diamonds is good. If B discards, Z also discards and must win the last trick with the ten of clubs. In no way, therefore, can A B win more than one trick. If you have figured out any way for A B to win more than one trick, you haven't interposed the best defense; so try it again.

EASTER

By PHILIP T. BOHLE
Once again we are approaching one of the sacred days of the Christian church, known as Easter. The name, "Easter," comes from the Anglo-Saxon "Eostre," a goddess of light or spring whose festival was celebrated in April. The name of the festival in Greek, French, Italian, and many other languages, is taken from the Hebrew "pasach," meaning, passover, as by the first Christians it was considered a continuation of the feast of the passover at which the paschal lamb, symbol of Christ, was sacrificed.

When life is slowly bursting forth anew in the woods, in parks, in gardens, when, as George MacDonald says in his "Songs of the Spring Days": "The Holy Spirit of the Spring is working silently."

Is working silently, then comes the holy festival, called Easter, observed in many branches of the Christian church to commemorate the resurrection of Christ.

It is significant that the seasons seem also to proclaim the outstanding experiences of Jesus. As the coming of spring brings new joy and hope and life to all nature, so did the coming of Jesus bring these things to those who embraced his teachings. The growing time and fruitfulness of the summer symbolizes his growth in wisdom and stature, in favor with God and man, and the fruitfulness of his busy life. The autumn frost and cold symbolize the sudden close of his useful life, and the winter is symbolical of his death and burial. But the springtime, with Easter, reminds us again of his resurrection, his coming forth into newness of life.

Jesus declared to those who would listen, "I am the resurrection and the life" (St. John 11:25). Thousands have found that their contact with this Christ has resulted in possession of a new life in this world, and the assurance of a life that shall never end in the world to come. Anyone who accepts Christ and his teachings as his standard of life has resurrected within him those qualities which contribute to the enrichment of life.

For example, take the three things which St. Paul said abide, namely, faith, hope and love. When the spirit that was in Christ rules our life, faith in ourselves and our fellowmen, and faith in God becomes a reality. Dante, in his "Inferno," has described the state of Hell as having the supercription over it, "All hope abandon, ye who enter here." There are many hopeless and dejected individuals, but not the true Christian; he has hope resurrected. The same holds true of the virtue of love. The Christian is on speaking terms with everyone, even his enemies. He loves his neighbor, regardless of race or creed, and he loves his God and expresses it through regard for his fellowmen.

As some poet has said in substance: If Christ be born in Bethlehem but not in our lives, the fact of his birth has little significance for us. It is equally true that if Christ has risen from the dead but has not risen in our lives, Easter has little meaning. The greatest present significance of the Easter should be that within our lives there has been resurrected the spirit of joyousness, peace, good will, sincerity, patience, sympathy, courage, faith, hope, and love.

EASTER ACTIVITIESSpring Newness Should Be Reflected in Menu and Entertainment

With what is Easter most closely associated in your mind, speaking of material things? New clothes, eggs and bunnies, Easter ham, or lilies? Or a composite of all these thoughts?

The very sound of Easter carries something of spring, of newness and freshness, as of dew on the grass, baby chicks and bunnies, life just beginning. Why not incorporate this impression into your Easter menu? The children will want their colored eggs for breakfast, of course, but instead of continuing the heavy diet, a good plan would be to serve grapefruit or oranges; these are both in season now, and reasonably priced.

Attractively prepared leafy vegetables and fruits, rather than an array of pastries and meats, on an Easter table are a fitting conclusion to the Lenten season of moderation.

Candles and Song

Children are keenly alive to the beautiful, unusual or impressive happenings in their life. This Easter, instead of being passed like any other holiday, might be made memorable in the minds of your children. How? By inviting a group of your children's friends, those musically inclined, to a little party at your home in the evening. They will enjoy an Easter egg hunt for candy eggs. Then comes the surprise! From a big box or bunny, the children will draw forth—not candy rabbits or eggs, but candles, with a blank slip of paper attached. Each child will then write on the paper his favorite hymn. And one by one, the children will light their candles, holding them while the hymn is played and sung.

If you have several small children, perhaps they would rather do this by themselves, as they would all be familiar with the same songs.

Everyone Loves
Hot Cross Buns
On Good Friday

Hot cross buns, hot cross buns,
One a penny, two a penny,
Hot cross buns!

Hot cross buns, hot cross buns,
If you have no daughters,
Give them to your sons!

Here is one time when Brother's ravenous appetite cannot be satisfied, until after Sister has had her fill. Good Friday is the Hot Cross Bun day, a day not complete to the youngsters unless a plate of hot buns, with frosted crosses decorating the tops, is forthcoming at the evening meal.

You may have your own favorite recipe for rolls, but if you have not made a custom of serving these buns on Good Friday, try one of the following. These do not make hot cross buns, necessarily, but they can be garnished with powdered sugar frosting crosses of varied colors. Do not fold, as in Parker House rolls.

Rueks.
2½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons maple or brown sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1 egg

1-3 to 2-3 cup water
2 tablespoons shortening
Sift together flour, salt, sugar, baking powder, nutmeg and cinnamon; add beaten egg and melted shortening to water, and add. Mix well and turn out on floured board. Divide into small pieces; with floured hands shape into rolls; place on greased shallow pan, close together; allow to stand ten to fifteen minutes before baking; brush with milk and sprinkle with a little maple or brown sugar. Bake in moderate oven twenty to thirty minutes.

For hot cross buns, with sharp knife make deep cross cuts on top each; brush with butter, sprinkle with sugar and bake.

Nut and Raisin Rolls.
2½ cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
5 tablespoons shortening
1 egg
2-3 cup milk
Butter
Raisins
Chopped nuts
½ cup sugar

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Add melted shortening and beaten egg to milk and add to dry ingredients, mixing well. Turn out on floured board and knead lightly. Roll out very thin. Spread with but-

GRAPEFRUIT AND ORANGES
IN PIE, CAKE AND BREADBy LOUCH CARTAUX
Chef, The Roosevelt, New York City

THE value of oranges and grapefruit in beverages, salads and desserts is quite generally appreciated, but less seems to be known about the use of these excellent fruits in the baking of bread, cakes, tarts and pies.

Orange bread is quite delicious and a mark of good taste at afternoon teas. Grapefruit pie still seems to be something of a novelty, but it has all the possibilities of becoming a leading American dessert. Does not a typical American breakfast begin with grapefruit and a typical American dinner end with pie?

Grapefruit Pie.
½ cup grapefruit juice
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons orange juice
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup cold water

Heat, but do not boil, fruit juices with sugar and salt, in double boiler. Mix water and cornstarch. Pour heated juice over cornstarch and replace in double boiler, stirring until thickened. Cook slowly ten minutes. Then stir in beaten yolks and butter, and boil one more minute. Sift well the orange or grapefruit rind. After pouring into lightly baked crust top with meringue made from two egg whites and four tablespoons powdered sugar. Sprinkle with granulated sugar. Bake in a slow 300-degree oven about twenty-five minutes, until meringue is lightly tanned.

Grapefruit Tartlets.
3 grapefruit
¼ cup sugar
1 pkg. orange gelatin
9 baked 3-inch tart shells

Peel grapefruit, as you would an orange, separate into segments, and remove membrane from each segment. Cover with sugar and let stand 15 minutes. Soak gelatin in one-fourth cup cold water and when it is jellied add one cup boiling water. Allow to cool a bit and pour over grapefruit sections. Stir frequently until gelatin begins to thicken. Fold several tablespoons of thickening gelatin into the whipped cream, and place a layer of this in the bottom of each shell. After this has chilled, place jellied grapefruit sections in shells and fill tarts with thickened gelatin.

Orange Bread.
½ cup home-made marmalade
2 tablespoons corn oil
1 egg
½ cup milk
½ cup orange juice
3 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt

Beat marmalade, oil and egg in bowl, adding milk and orange juice and the dry ingredients sifted together. Bake in greased two-inch deep loaf pan for about one hour at 350 degrees. Before baking pat top of loaf with melted butter.

Orange Filling.
Mix juice of three large oranges and their thin parings, chopped fine with grated pulp or six raw carrots. Add two cups sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, and one cup chopped blanched almonds. Cook one-half hour and stir frequently to prevent burning or sticking. This makes an excellent filling for layer cake and it keeps well in small-sealed jars.

Orange Biscuits.
Use your favorite baking powder biscuit dough. Before baking place on top of each biscuit a cube of sugar that has been saturated with orange juice, and a sprinkling of grated orange peel.

ter and sprinkle with raisins, chopped nuts and small amount of granulated sugar. Cut into about 2-inch squares. Brush over with yolk of egg mixed with a little cold water and sprinkle with nuts and sugar, and allow to stand in greased pan about fifteen minutes. Bake in moderate oven from twenty to twenty-five minutes.

Parker House Rolls.
4 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
6 teaspoons baking powder

2 to 4 tablespoons shortening
1½ cups milk
Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Add melted shortening to milk and add slowly to dry ingredients, stirring until smooth. Knead on floured board and roll ½ inch thick. Cut with biscuit cutter. Place one inch apart in greased pan. Allow to stand fifteen minutes in warm place. Brush with melted butter and bake in hot oven fifteen to twenty minutes.

DEMURE EASTER BRIMS

A "straw vote" of fashion favors baku, panamalac, shiny braids, and a new dull finish cellophane braid, in clever off-the-face hats, tricornes, and brimmed versions. All three of these models show the popular ribbon cluster at the side, as a complement to the band. Black, cream, and lavender, always a delicate Easter color, are the distinguishing hues.

A "TIP-AND-TURN"
or "DIAL CONTROL" TOASTER?

Two new-style toasters, both finished in non-tarnishing chromeplate, both specially priced, are now on display at all Public Service Stores. The Tip-and-Turn model is $3.95. The Dial Control model is $4.45. Be sure to see them.

Profit by Others'
Experiences as Well as Your OwnIf Your Roast Is Pale And Languid, Maybe You've Left the Cover On

It is a pleasure to watch some housewives at work. Through years of experience, from schools, or from advice, they have learned many little tricks and time-saving moves which cause each of us to do some polite staring, and ponder, "Why didn't I think of that?"

Or we enter another kitchen where the housewife is busy preparing the meal, and are utterly dumfounded that anyone living in a modern age can be so hopelessly backward in their methods.

We are not all experts; few of us are, in fact, for we have not the equipment or the money. Old paper's most frequent use in the home lies in wrapping lunches, but some homemakers eliminate dishwashing by lining their pans with it, when they melt chocolate, butter, or lard for baking.

Experts say that a stockinet on the rolling pin, and a pastry cloth on the table aid in preventing the dough from shrinking back when rolled. Fair-minded cooks, even if they do not adopt this idea for everyday application, will admit that it would serve an occasional use, when an extra fancy pantry for company is desired.

To be present at the wielding of some bread knives is as agonizing to the bystander as it must be to the bread loaf. To begin with, the wrong type of knife is employed; secondly, it is dull, and hacks the bread unmercifully. A bread knife blade should have fine saw teeth, arranged in alternating sections which slant both ways, while a long, straight-edged blade is preferred for cutting cake or meat.

Some women's roasts never do become brown, because they clamp the cover tightly, and the moist steam, instead of dry heat, surrounds the meat. Fat should not be removed from the meat until after it is roasted; it leaves the meat more tender.

TOPPY'S TRAVELS

Synopsis: Topsy leaves home to follow his canary. After many adventures he and his friends, Mr. Frog and Toy, the drowdrop, cause the Cuckoos to fight the Pillows, their enemies. Thus they hope to rescue their Cloud-Queen, whose land is invaded by the Pillows. Topsy and Mr. Frog finally arrive through a tunnel to the room where the Queen is kept captive. Conclusion:

Fitting the little gold key into the keyhole, Topsy turned it, and then pushed against the glass trap door. He was so afraid that nothing would happen that he forgot to breathe. And great was his relief when the door gave way and opened upwards.

Mr. Frog hopped up, and Topsy stepped into the room after him. As before, when he had first entered the room, he was made speechless by the beauty of the room, and the dazzling light playing over the throne. The Queen had lost none of her beauty during her imprisonment.

The Maidens all clustered about Topsy, eager to know if they were to be freed. "We have not seen as many guards in the garden this last week," one of them said. "Where have they gone? Back to their own country?"

Mr. Frog now spoke up before Topsy could answer. "Some of them have returned to their own country, but not for the reason that you suppose."

The Maidens turned startled eyes upon the Frog. In the excitement they had scarcely noticed the little Frog.

The Queen stepped forward to greet him. "Mr. Frog! And safe, too? Where is your little friend, the drowdrop?"

Topsy listened for the answer, because Mr. Frog had refused to tell him before. But Mr. Frog only murmured politely, "Toy is safe, too."

"I am glad," smiled the Queen. "He is such a brave little fellow. Why are the guards leaving?"

"Because they are at war with the Cuckoos. I arranged that," boasted Mr. Frog, proudly.

"They are?" "You did?" "Oh, wonderful!" Grief came from every side. Mr. Frog fairly puffed with importance.

"Tell us about it!" the Maidens urged.

Again Topsy listened carefully for mention of Toy, but of him no word was spoken. The Frog also told of all their adventures since last seeing the Queen in the garden after Topsy had captured Egopl, the Pillow-Queen's son.

"I am hungry," Topsy told the Queen, having worried of Mr. Frog's voice.

"Hungry? Poor Topsy! We have nothing to give you." The Queen looked anxiously at the boy.

"It is such a long way to the pool, too," she sympathized. "Do you think you can get there without food?"

"Yes, of course," Topsy said gallantly, hiding his hunger which was becoming greater every minute.

But the Queen was not wholly deceived. "We will start at once," she decided. "I shall take two of my maidens, and leave the others here."

"How can we get to the top of the pool, after we reach the end of the tunnel?" asked Topsy.

"Oh, that is easy," the Queen reassured him. "Wait and see."

Choosing two of her strongest maidens, the Queen led the way down the stairs, followed closely by Topsy and Mr. Frog. The glass door shut behind them, and locked with a tiny click.

Topsy chattered on, pretending to be cheerful, but he was growing more tired every step he took. At last he could contain himself no longer. "Why is this tunnel so long? It isn't that far from the pool to the throne room above ground."

"No, this is made to confuse my enemies. The key directs us into the right path, but there are other paths which lead nowhere, and anyone not possessing the key would soon be hopelessly lost," the Queen explained.

"So I found out," muttered Mr. Frog, "but I found the way back."

The time passed more quickly when they were talking, and they reached the end of the tunnel before Topsy had expected or hoped to.

THOUSANDS ARE PAYING TRIBUTE

No Wonder Seven Million Bottles of Konjola Were Used in 2 Years.

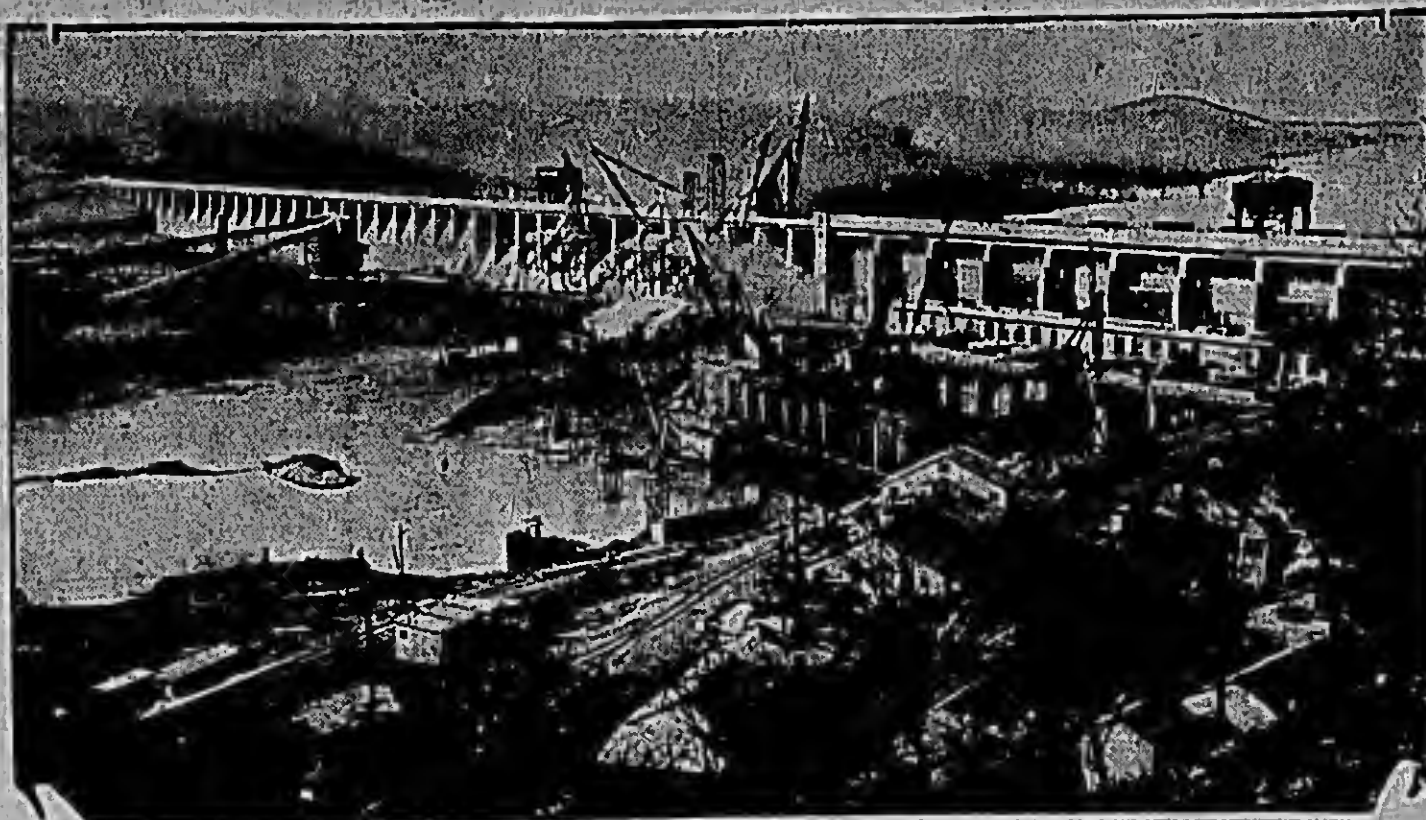

There is gratitude in every word expressed by Mr. Charles H. Jessup, 1903 E. 60th street, Cleveland, Ohio. He says of Konjola: "I was so ill that I could not breathe when lying down and was forced to sit in a chair. From December to March I could do no work whatever. I took eight bottles of Konjola and today I am as sound as a dollar. I rest well, have regained my lost weight and feel better than I have in years."

Equally grateful is the expression of Mrs. E. Dawson, 2036 West 31st street, O'Connell, Ohio. She has this to say: "I was run down and unable to sleep because of nervousness. I was constipated and suffered misery after meals. Neuritis attacked my arms and shoulders. Headaches and backaches were fearful. Today, after taking Konjola, I am relieved of all these miseries and feel better than I have in a long time."

Konjola contains no alcohol or harmful drugs.

THE YARN OF BOB AND BILL IN THE JUNGLE

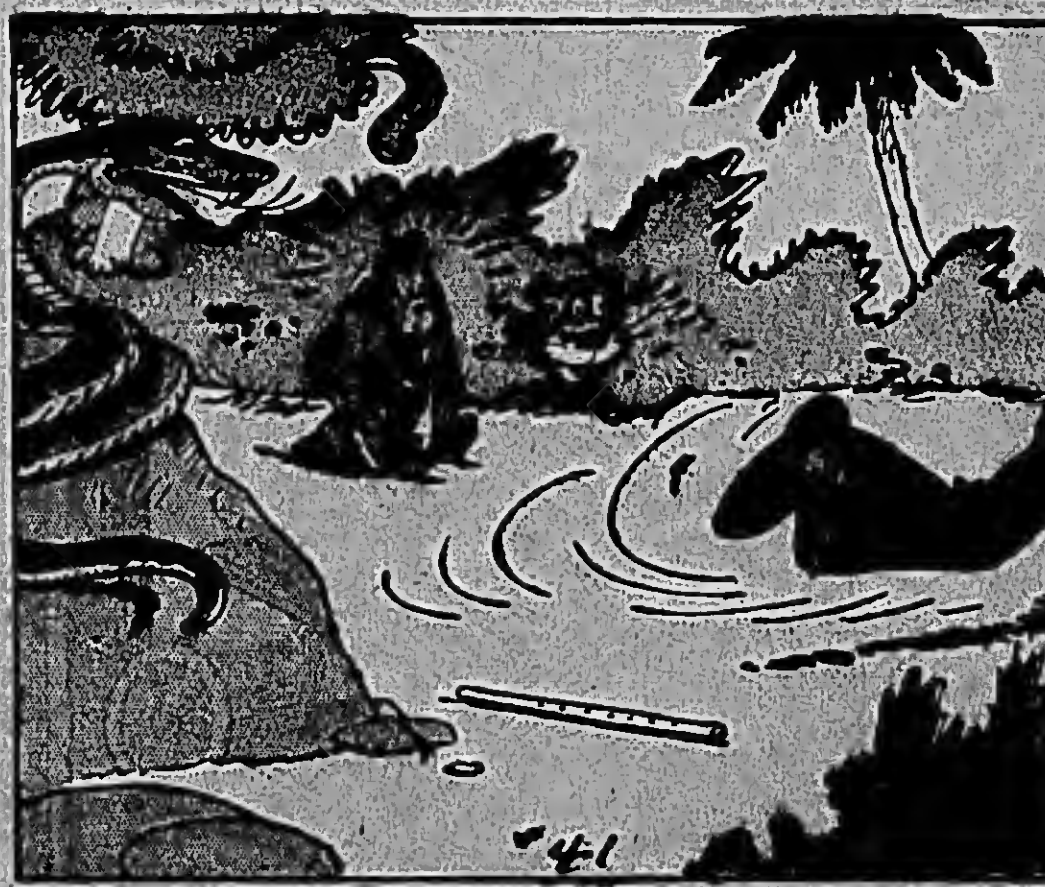

This yarn is about a tin whistle adventure. Our schooner was anchored in Maassar Strait, just off Bentang, a little port on the island of Borneo. There wasn't much to do on board so I was tootin' away on my tin whistle, thinkin' I was makin' pretty good music. I guess my music must have been pretty bad for one of the crew growled to the skipper that it would be a pretty good idea to chuck me overboard.

I was gettin' so many mean looks from all hands that I hopped into a boat, pulled ashore and headed for the jungle where nobody would kick. Well, s'r, I'd been tootin' away with my eyes closed, havin' a regular feast of music, when happenin' to open my peepers I saw somethin' that fairly raised my hair.

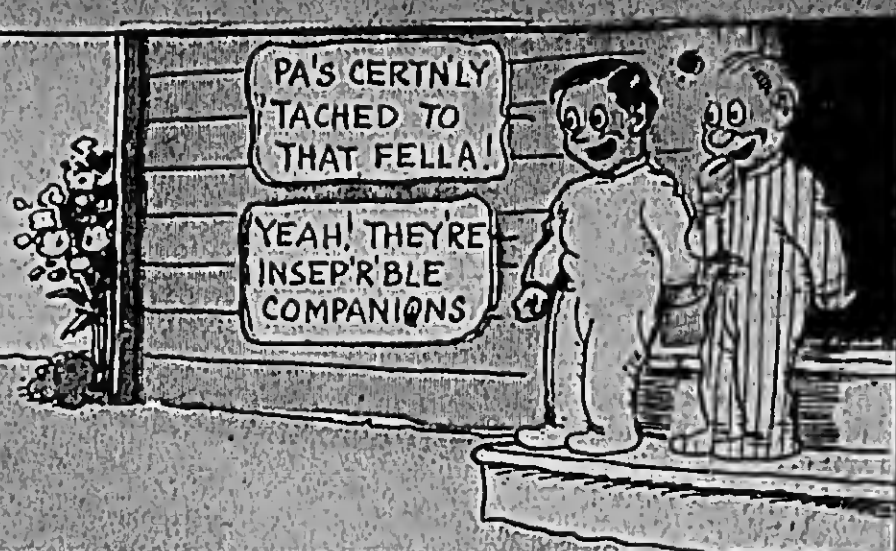

Right in front of me was a whoppin' big snake, a leopard, and a grinnin' ape.

You could have knocked me over with a feather. I tell you it looked like a squally weather for old Bill. I figured my only chance for safety was to keep on tootin'. Then, scared as I was, I almost laughed for the snake, the leopard, and the ape all started to hop around and dance.

After awhile I began to get tired of the show so I thought I'd blow a sour note, figurin' it might scare 'em away long enough to give me a chance to get back to my boat. Well, s'r, I blew a blast that fairly shook the leaves on the trees. I'll be dingbusted if the whole lot of 'em didn't streak for the jungle. And me? I hit for the boat so fast my shoes smoked. And then, just as I was pullin' away, I'll be swiggered if the big snake and his pals didn't come out of the jungle, actually grinnin', and the ape was tootin' away on my tin whistle.
